Eddie Ashworth Participates in Panel Discussion to be Televised

Baton Rouge – Louisiana Technology Park’s President Eddie Ashworth along with Barry Erwin, President, Council for a Better Louisiana, Dr. James Richardson, Director, Public Administration Institute, LSU and George Swift, President/CEO, Southwest Louisiana Economic Development Alliance participated in a Council for a Better Louisiana panel discussion about accelerating Louisiana’s economic growth beyond the recovery economy that we are currently in. The show will air Wednesday, June 13, at 8 p.m. on Cox4 in the Baton Rouge and Acadiana regions and will replay over the following two weeks.

The panel supported long-term and consistent state funding to help move the state toward a think-based economy. Eddie also specifically called on continued state support for Pennington Biomedical Research Center and LSU’s Flagship Agenda.

The show is hosted by Rusty Jabour.

The Louisiana Technology Park is an incubator for technology-oriented companies providing highly subsidized services, including high speed internet access and business coaching that enables emerging companies to grow.
