Tech Park to Exhibit at Tech South

BATON ROUGE Louisiana Technology Park will be represented at TechSouth's annual conference in Lafayette, LA on May 7-9, 2007.

TechSouth, a non-profit group with board members from across the northern Gulf Coast, has worked diligently for the past 4 years to build its annual TechSouth Summit to be the premier technology conference on the northern gulf coast. Today, true to its regional focus, it announced Mississippi Technology Alliance President, Dr. Randy Goldsmith as the speaker for the opening keynote on May 8th at 9:45AM. Shortly thereafter, in partnership with the Louisiana Technology Council, the Louisiana Governor's Technology Awards luncheon will take place. This event honors individuals and companies that have made a significant contribution to technology based economic development.

The following day, May 9th, internationally known CTO for SGI, Dr. Eng Lim Goh will deliver the morning keynote. The luncheon for day two is a panel discussion with CIOs from across the region on the topic of balancing sometimes risky innovation against bottom line ROI.

This year's conference agenda will provide attendees with a venue to learn with 15 seminars each day, to share, to network and to expose themselves to the latest technologies that are driving today's innovative companies, all FREE, unless you want a sit down meal for which there is a nominal fee. This conference will unlock the secrets to the tools to stay competitive in today's market. Also, true to its regional focus, free complimentary booth space is provided to the following technology Councils; Southwest Louisiana Chamber of Commerce (Lake Charles), Zydetech (Lafayette), Baton Rouge Area Chamber of Commerce, Louisiana Technology Council (New Orleans), Mississippi Technology Alliance, Gulf Coast Technology Council (Mobile), and Pensacola Area Chamber of Commerce, if they desire. TechSouth also cross promotes and supports, at various levels, peer events in those respective regions as well.

About TechSouth: TechSouth is an all volunteer, not for profit group with a mission of "Creating an Applied IT Corridor along the Gulf Coast". Founded 5 years ago from a grass roots movement across the State of Louisiana, it continues to gain partners along the Gulf Coast. Volunteers, partners and stakeholders put turf and territory aside to pursue this economic development oriented mission of assisting businesses and individuals in applying technology for the betterment of all.

The Louisiana Technology Park is an incubator for technology-oriented companies providing highly-subsidized services, including high-speed Internet access and business coaching that enables emerging companies to grow.
